What's New in the?

The most accurate and sensitive diagnostic test for syphilis is now used by almost 80 percent of US medical examiners. Dr. Terrence Pritchard explains how he used it to convict a serial killer in a surprise legal victory (Continued from page 4) I'm sure it was quite an ordeal for you, but I didn't realize you'd been in at least five courtrooms, all involving the same man—let alone in the same week! Well, that's not quite true. I did spend a week at the Baltimore House of Corrections and a week at the Baltimore jail. The first of those two was January 4, 1998. My last visit was on March 20, 2001. I was there for the sentencing of Joseph Raymond Sousa. It was that last visit that did it. The man I had interviewed the day after he was found guilty was changed. He had been very quiet and withdrawn, focusing on his lawyer's question and answering, but he was now animated and eager to tell his story. His reaction was the same each time I visited him—one of total surprise. His lawyer, Edward F. Jabber, now a very famous lawyer, asked me to come to court, and we met in a small room that contained a table, a floor-to-ceiling mirror, a chair for the defendant, and a chair for me. The courtroom was in Judge Rudolph Alexander's court in Baltimore City, which was small and wood-paneled, with the judge's bench in the middle. The gallery was full and, of course, there was a press area. The judge's court is always very busy, even with a long calendar, and I had the pleasure of meeting one of the two bailiffs who worked for Judge Alexander. We reviewed my notes of the interview, and he was glad to see me, calling me by name every time. I was the only person he knew there, and when I told him that, he looked at me a little strangely. He was very cordial and talked about his family. He said he appreciated that I had been fair to him in the interview, and my notes show that he talked about growing up in New London, Connecticut, and working as a carpenter's helper and
