[Pharmacotherapy of melancholic depression in the elderly]. In recent years, the number of elderly people with depression is increasing year by year. Depression in the elderly is different from that in younger people. The unique clinical features include cognitive impairment, physical illness, and decreasing of serum cortisol level. The symptoms of depression in the elderly include not only anxiety, fatigue and sleeping disorders, but also feelings of suicidal ideation, appetite disorder, and elevated body temperature. For the treatment of these symptoms, it is important to treat the physical illness, sleep disorder, and appetite disorder. Major depression in the elderly differs in gender and duration. In the elderly, there are some characteristic gender differences and the main factors of low suicide rate in men are high self-esteem, sense of purpose, and pessimism. Low suicide rate in women is associated with less physical illness, more social support and less severity of physical illness. The median duration of depression in men is twice as long as that in women. Therefore, the duration of depression treatment in elderly is different from that in younger people. The effect of antidepressants in the elderly is different from that in younger people. The long-term medication requires careful observation due to the risk of drug dependence and death. Sometimes this connection is beneficial. In other cases, it can pose problems for both people and pets. In fact, there are various benefits and risks that come with being the owner of a dog.

Benefits A study conducted by the Center for Disease Control, found that people who have pets are less likely to get sick than those who do not own pets. Another study conducted by California State University found that, if you own a dog, you are less likely to suffer from depression. Another benefit of owning a dog is that it provides companionship and love and can help people heal from recent loss. It can also keep people fit by reducing the amount of time spent watching television. Children tend to be more active and adventurous if they grow up with pets, meaning they are less likely to be obese later in life and can have more friends. Risks Some people are allergic to the saliva that is secreted by the tongue of dogs. This may also be heard by now, the 2013-14 San Antonio Spurs were named one of the top 100 sporting events of the past century. The list, which was released by San Antonio magazine earlier this week, includes the Spurs as the sixth-best sporting event of the last century. While the Spurs haven't been on the list before, San Antonio has received top-100 lists before. It was ranked the second best event in the nation by the NCAA and the third best event in the nation by ESPN. The Spurs were the third-best sporting event in San Antonio history. The 2009 NBA Draft was the first, followed by the 2005 and 2003 Finals. The 1993 Southwest Conference Tournament and the 2004 NCAA Tournament round of eight stood as the two others. It's the fourth time San Antonio has been on a list of the best events of the last century. San Antonio hosted the 1984 Olympics and the 2007 World Championships of Badminton. San Antonio has also hosted the NCAA, NBA and the NFL Draft, in addition to the SCBA Nationals. Who we think was the best? The list was compiled by a panel of experts, including San Antonio Express-News sports columnist Mike Heika, San Antonio native and sports columnist for ESPN.com Mark Blaudschun, and Sports Media Watch editor and founder Patrick Courrielche. It's certainly a little surprising that the Spurs didn't make the cut for the top 10 list. Considering San Antonio has just one championship and only one trip to the Finals in the last 20 years, it's easy to consider them the first team in major sports to accomplish so little. The good news is that the Spurs made the list, and it's a lot higher than previous lists. That's certainly something to cheer about. Now, if we could only get San Antonio's sports writers to include David Robinson, Sean Elliott, Eric Nusbaum, Gregg Popovich and the rest of the team on top-100 lists./*
