This tutorial will show you how to make simple edits to your photos. We'll cover basic edits like cropping, fixing perspective, adjusting color, boosting brightness, and dodging and burning for highlights, shadows, and midtones. Tutorial Assets Artboard 1 Artboard 2 Video Tutorial - Making Colors and Hues Easier with Color Variations Get Photoshop CS4 or later Access the Full Photoshop CS4 Photography Guide Step 1 Photoshop CS4 and later will automatically open when you download, but if not, open Adobe Photoshop CS4 or Photoshop CS5 from the Windows Start menu. Create a new document of the size you would like your final image to be. For our example, we will use a 1000x1000-pixel RGB (red, green, blue) document. If the document is not the same size as the final image, you will want to crop the image and save that as a separate file after you have made your edits, so it can be used as an overlay for your image. Step 2 With our New document open, we will import an image of the landscape to add to our image. The landscape image will give us the base for our image because we will use it for all our major adjustments such as cropping and focusing on the sky. Open the image by clicking and holding the right mouse button and choose "Image, Adjustments, Open, More Options, Open Recent, select Browse. Select New and navigate to the folder where the image resides. Select the image you want to open and click Open. Step 3 We will now begin to crop the image. To begin the crop, go to Image, Image Size and select the crop tool. Enter the percentage of the crop you wish to make, and drag your mouse around the document so that you can see the difference it makes in real-time. It's important to note that there are 2 pixels at the beginning of the crop, so if you wish to begin there, right-click and choose "Move Current Cursor Horizontally." Step 4 To adjust the perspective of the image, we will use the Perspective tool. The tool is not visible as an on-screen tool, but rather a button in the View menu. To access the button, choose View, Perspective, or right-click and choose Perspective from the menu. Once the Perspective tool is open, and you have found the horizon

OpenAL Absorb Example doxygen generated documentation Generated on Sat May 23 16:43:23 2011 for OpenAL Utils by 1.5.8 The present invention relates to a continuous caster in which molten metal is continuously supplied to a continuous casting mold from a tundish. More particularly, the invention relates to a continuous caster which is adapted to form cast strands (solidified molten metal) of uniform cross section by discharge from the mold, wherein the bottom of the mold can be opened and closed with ease. The prior art continuous caster of this type comprises a continuous casting mold having a hollow portion disposed in a cylinder (a shell and a baffle system), and molten metal (molten aluminum) is supplied to this continuous casting mold by a tundish. More specifically, molten metal is supplied into the hollow portion of the continuous casting mold while simultaneously supplying a cooling medium to the outer surface of the molten metal, thus permitting the surface of the molten metal to solidify gradually. The layer of solidified metal thus formed is gradually discharged from the hollow portion of the continuous
